EAST SIDERS WILL BUILD OWN HOTEL

Contract to Purchase Ambrosini Property for $75,000

FIRM PROPOSITION

Plan to Raise Construction Fund Through Finance Company

That a number of buiness men of the Glendale avenue and Broadway section of the city, members of the Glendale Advancement Association, have organized and contracted to purchase the Ambrosini property at the corner of Broadway and Glendale avenue for $75,000 was the assertion of C. W. Ingledue, at the forum luncheon of the chamber of commerce Tuesday.

"This puts our hotel proposition on a better footing today than it ahs been for months," said Mr. Ingledue. "The hotel proposition as originally planned has fallen through. We have worked night and day since last April to get this hotel, but have discovered that the would-be hotel builders have just been carrying us along with promises. It was a continual question of " next Monday work will start" and at one time it narrowed down to thirty-six hours, but they failed to come through at the critical moment.

"But we are now through with those people and things look as though they will soon be different. The property on which we have an option has 225 feet on Broadway and 229 feet on Glendale avenue. It is an admirable site for a hotel.

"We are now in communication with the Hockinbury System company, which finances and builds hotels, puts over promotion campaigns and the like, and it is possible that a contract will be entered into with this concern whereby it well come here and put over this proposition. Things now look easy. We are overjoyed at the prospects. All hands are determined to put this hotel over, just as we put the railroad over, and I believe we will succeed."

The statements made by Mr. Ingledue came as a result of a suggestion by Secretary Rhoades that the committe in charge of the hotel proposition lay their cards on the table, so that in some way, in the shortest possible time a hotel might be constructed in this city.

"Friends," Secretary Rhoades said, "We simply must have a hotel in Glendale. Every day I have inquiries for hotel facilities and am compelled to tell the visitors that we have no hotel here. I am compelled to send them to the nearest hotel in Los Angeles, and when they once leave our city they very seldom come back.

"The time has come when we must know the status of the hotel situation on the east side of the city. If there is a chance of putting that proposition over, I believe I can assure you that the chamber of commerce will do everything in its power to assist. We will appoint a committee of 15, 25, 50 or even a hundred of our members to help you in any way possible. We want you to understand that we are with you people on the east side of the city heart and soul. You are the leaders in this fight and we are at your command.

"But, gentlemen, on the other hand, we want you to put your cards on the table. We want to konw just how matters over there stand. We want you to hold nothing back. If there is no chance of you putting the proposition over tell us so. We can then go ahead and put over one of the propositions we have at our disposal. We have been laying low on the hotel proposition for several months awaiting the outcome of your campaign. Several times we have been approached with hotel offers, but we have turned them down temporarily.

"Glendale simply must have a hotel. The city is being held back on account of the lack of one. If there is a chance of your proposition going over we are with you, if not, we will have to work along other lines."

"It is indeed gratifying to me to hear the words of Secretary Rhoades," said P. J. Hayselden. "Although I have not been as active in the hotel matter as I might have been, due to my work on the railroad proposition, I have known pretty much how things have been going along.

"The committee from the Glendale Advancement Association has worked long and faithfully on this hotel matter. It has worked early and late. The original proposition, as you have been told, has fallen through, but it seems as though that is all for the best. The proposition we are now working on cannot, as I see it, fall through. We are going to put it over, just as we did the railroad.

"We are pleased to tell you how the hotel matter stands. Our cards are on the table. We are telling everything we know. I give you my personal pledge that if the new proposition reaches a point where it is absolutely sure that it cannot be put over, I will inform you of that fact at the earliest possible moment.

"We do not recognize any territorial division in the city. We are working for the whole of Glendale and believe in supporting all sides of town. I will tell you right here that if our hotel proposition over there falls down I will be more than willing to help you put over some other hotel deal in whatever section of the city you select."

The work of the Hockinbury System Company will be to handle the work of financing the new company and after the proposition is over and the hotel constructed, to provide a responsible man to operate the institution. The representatives of this company will be brought to Glendale at the earliest possible moment and the campaign will be completed in whirlwind fashion.

Swappers Swamp the Swappers' Colony

Swappers swamped the swappers' colony so much today that it was hard to get around to say how-to-do to them all, for they came in over the counter and over the telephone and everything, so that all went right into the Swappers' column where you will find them ready for you, willing to trade you out of anything you wish you did not have because you don't want it anymore.

The Swappers' club stands, therefore, pat on its original candidates, which follow:

Applications for membership in the Glendale Press Swap Club are in order. Everyone in Glendale is eligible. To become an applicant a person must place at least one advertisement in the swap column of the Press.

To become a member of the Swap club each applicant, after placing the ad, must give absolute evidence of having completed a swap. The name of the things swapped and the thing that was received in return must be given, these to be published in the Press.

Those eligible for membership in the Press Swap Club up to date are as follows:

HIGH TRUSTEES CONSIDER THEIR LIABILITIES

Authorize Inspection of Entire Plant and Equipment

At the regular monthly meeting of Glendale high school trustees held Tuesday evening, the question of liability insurance was discussed but no action taken. The board did, however, authorize the employment of some one to make inspections of grounds, buildings and equipment and submit reports to the board.

The Glendale Community Service organization was granted the use of quarters for its various activities that would not interrere with school activities. It was also granted the use of the tennis courts at night, the city having agreed to light them free of charge.

A letter received from Mrs. Greer relative to the bus situation for the transportation of Tujunga students was discussed. To insure the satisfaction of the greatest number the board has asked patrons of the Tujunga district to vote on the matter.

In response to a communication from the Kiwanis club requesting the appointment of a representative to meet with the city-wide committee of arrangements for a community Christmas tree, A. L. Ferguson, vice-principal, who is a member of the Kiwanis club, was asked to serve.

RED CROSS BUNDLE DAY TOMORROW

Two Days' Drive to Clothe Needy of Greek Refugees

DEPOTS ARE APPOINTED

Warships Are Filled with Starving, Ill-clad Victims

Tomorrow and Friday of this week are set apart as Bundle Days by the local Red Cross for Glendale and vicinity in the interest of the destitute and needy among the Greek refugees, who are in direful and appalling distress for the need of clothing.

Glendale has always done her bit in response to the nation-wide calls coming from time to time. This is another opportunity where the spirit of the Good Samaritan can be exhibited to the helpless. Parents and children, husbands and wives, are called upon to get a bundle of cast-off, out of style, outgrown clothes, any size from the infant to the adult, including coats, suits, dresses, underclothing, shoes, anything that helps to keep a human body warm. This is to be taken or sent to the public school houses or to the church nearest your home where they will be taken care of.

These are the reasons for this nation-wide appeal by the Red Cross: As a result of the recent war between the Turks and Greeks, the Greek army has been driven out of Turkey and an attempt has been made by the Turks to force the entire Greek population of Asia Minor out of that country. As these refugees speak the Greek language they have been taken by British, American, French and Italian warships and put ashore either on the Greek mainland or the Greek Islands, of which many lie between Smyrna and Greece.

As the Greek population was driven out immediately following the terrible sacking and destroying of the city of Smyrna, their homes, household goods, business and all belongings, went up in smoke in one awful holocaust. That city today is one charred mass of ruins, that was once the pride of Asia Minor. Its people are exiles, refugees.

These refugees have been landed on Greek soil without any resources or means of self protection or clothing or feeding themselves. It is estimated the number thus so suddenly forced from their homes and compelled to abandon everything home means, is more than 700,000. The chief centers where those unfortunate people, unhappy and disconsolate, miserable and wretched have been crowded are Athens, Saloniki, Kavala and the Greek Islands. The single small island of Mitylene alone is said to have received 150,000 of these people in all their misery and poverty, more than half without shelter.

The ablebodied men among the Greeks have been seized and imprisoned by the Turks or driven into the interior, separated from their families, thus the helpless refugees consist largely of women and children with some feeble old men and women.

Large shipments of food, clothing, blankets, etc., have already been made by the Red Cross and the Near East Relief, which are working together as far as possible.

This appeal is backed up by President Harding and the entire country.

Tomorrow and Friday of this week are Glendale's Bundle Days.

COMMUNITY SPORT LEAGUES FORMED BY SERVICE

Jesse Smith's indoor baseball team will meet the Sport Shop aggregation in the high school gymnasium, Friday evening, in the first indoor baseball game held under the auspices of Community Service.

Community Service is sponsoring the formation of three athletic leagues for the city. Under the plan there will be leagues for indoor baseball, basketball and volley ball. Churches, clubs and business houses will be represented in separate leagues. Trophies will be presented to the winning team of each league.

Jesse Smith and H. H. Griffin of the Sport Shop are the first to enter teams in the commercial league.

Viola C. Mae Diarmid, 400 South Adams and a person whose name could not be learned were driving machines that came together on Brand near Broadway at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. No one was injured.

GLENDALE'S FIRST TOWN MEETING ON ANNEXATION

The mass meeting tonight at the Glendale high school for the purpose of expressing Glendale first and last on the annexation question should be the most momentous gathering of taxpayers ever brought together.

It should bring out a town meeting such as figured in the early days of the middle west when town progress and affairs were laid bare for the scrutiny of all who paid a portion to the support of the community.

The Glendale Daily Press today urges all those who have bought or are buying homes here to attend.

It is well aware that those orators who have figured in lengthy debates on municipal affairs, which is permissible, of course, will be there, ready and willing to weary the gathering.

Whether the orators who are now girding themselvse for an enjoyable talkfest on everything under the canopy of heaven will be permitted this time to exhaust the patience of the people, lies with the chairman selected.

As a remedial measure the Glendale Daily Press would suggest that at the meeting no orator be allowed to consume the time of the meeting in five-minute speeches at five-minute intervals during the entire evening.

It suggests that talks be limited to fifteen minutes' total time during the entire evening. That a close check on the orators be maintained in the audience and that they be called upon to finish under a rule which can be established at the opening of the meeting.

If this is done it will be quite possible to arrive at home before the sneak thieves and burglars have finished the evening's practical illustration of the principle of annexation.

And in this connection it is pleased to print the following from a citizen still on the fence who pleads for peace:

To my Fellow Citizens of Glendale: Let me as a citizen not yet fully committed to the proposition for or against annexation to Los Angeles urge you to consider the matter solely on its merits, dispassionately and without bias or prejudice, for on the outcome much depends in the future progress of our unique little corner of the universe.

Let us at all times bear in mind that on both sides of this controversy are arrayed some of our best and most intelligent citizens, and that neither side has a monopoly of that much abused word "loyalty," notwithstanding the flamboyant utterances of some hotheads to the contrary. Are there any individuals who are taking an active part in this discussion whose selfish personal interests, financial or otherwise, would be affected favorably or adversely by annexation? If so, who are these individuals and just how would it affect them? A study of this phase of the question may be helpful in enabling us to decide.

Glendale's growing pains have at times been acute, and ofttimes unnecessarily so. In discussing matters of public policy it has been all too common for individuals holding strong opinions to accuse those of opposite views of bad faith when often, or I may say as a rule, there is no basis for such an accusation. It has always seemed to me that the faction which throws the most mud, uses the strongest invective is usually the side with selfish interests at stake, and its utterances should act as a warning and a stimulus to investigation, but unfortunately many people either have not the time or the inclination to look beneath the surface and so allow themselves to become prejudiced without any real understanding of the question at issue.

If we must disagree let us do so in a dignified but friendly manner, considering the merits of the issue only and avoid personalities as far as possible, and as individuals make a decision of which we will not afterwards feel regretful.

OLD TIMER.

PUBLIC SCHOOL INVESTIGATORS TOUR SCHOOLS

Begin Work at Verdugo Woodlands; Due to Return Late in Afternoon

All members save two of the committee of fifteen appointed to investigate school conditions and report to a mass meeting of Glendale patrons of city schools, made a tour of all the schools Tuesday and visited Verdugo Woodlands and Sparr Heights, leaving the office of the board of education at 8:30 and getting back at 4:45.

At Sparr Heights they were met by Senator Francis, H. E. Barnum and Mr. Wallace of the Sparr Heights company, and the senator told the committee he would be prepared in the course of a few days to submit in due form a proposition for a school site, indicating in a general way its probable location.

The committee decided to hold no meeting until after it has received a report of the conference to be held by the high school trustees, members of the board of education, and representatives of other districts tributary to Glendale high.

REALTORS OPPOSE L. A. ANNEXATION

At its meting today the Glendale Realty Board went on record as unanimously opposing annexation to Los Angeles at this time.

L. H. Wilson, secretary of the San Fernando Boulevard Improvement association, stated that so far as the officers of that organization are concerned, they are opposed to annexation, even though located in the south part of Glendale.

PAY ASSEMBLY IS HELD WITH PLAY BY STUDENTS

Debate with Los Angeles High Is Set for Friday Night

Today, a pay assembly is being held at Glendale high at 11:55, which will be repeated at 12:30. The program will consist of a play put on by the dramatic section of the English department, entitled "Their Anniversary." It will be a benefit for the boys' and girls' league Chirstmas fund.

Friday evening will come the big debate between the team of Glendale high—Isabel Tousey and Harold Majors, and the debating team of Los Angeles high.

It will be the hardest contest in which the Glendale team will participate.

Arrangements are being made to transport a bus load of students from Glendale Hi, who have no other way to go, and all the autos of students will be requisitioned.

On Thursday there will be meetings of all the classes during roll call period except A-9 and B-9. These will go to the auditorium and put on a program of announcements of Friday's football games and the league debate with Los Angeles high. This assembly will be in charge of the secretary of assemblies, Eloene Truitt.

Friday, during roll call periods there will be assemblies for the 10th, 11th and 12th year students.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

Two accidents served to enliven things in Glendale Tuesday. Machines operated by Mrs. T. L. Meneley, 417 North Isabel, and Judson M. Gibbs, 508 West Lexington, collided at the corner of Broadway and Glendale, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Very litle damage was done.

ALUMNI TO PLAY FIRST HIGH TEAM

Battle of Pigskin to Be Staged on Friday Afternoon

SAN FERNANDO HERE

Victorious Midgets to Meet Valley Lightweights in Wind-up

The biggest sporting event of the year for Glendale high is to be pulled off Friday afternoon when the alumni football team will meet the first team of Glendale high at 1:30 and this game will be followed at 3 p. m. by a game between the victorious lightweight team of San Fernando and the championship lightweights of Glendale.

The class periods are to be shortened so that teachers and students can witness both games. The school considers itself very lucky in securing the game with San Fernando for Moyse field and two splendid contests are therefore in prospect.

Cabinet members are enthusiastic and will boost both events to the limit, the tickets having been placed at 50 cents straight. It is expected the alumni will turn out in force. Its team is a strong one including many former stars of the school and it is certain to be a close contest.

CHRISTMAS CAROL MEETING PLAN PROGRESSES

Meeting Held at Hi Starts Campaign for Big Movement

Representatives of the various musical, choral, church and civic organizations met Tuesday night in the music room of Glendale Union high school to discuss plans for the Christmas carol campaign which is to supplement the Community Service Christmas celebration being headed by the Kiwanis club. Mrs. Dora L. Gibson, chairman of the Christmas carol committee of Community Service, was in charge of the meeting, and various ways and means of working out a successful musical program were considered.

The high school grounds have been suggested as being the most centrally located point for a community Christmas tree, and Mrs Gibson stated that if this location was decided on the plans were to have various groups of carolers singing in various sections of the city and then meeting together at the tree about 6 o'clock Christmas eve, which is on a Sunday. Alexander Stewart, Pacific coast music organizer for Community Service suggested that bulletins containing the Christmas carols be distributed to all places where people gather together, between now and Christmas, such as churches, schools, clubs, civic organizations etc., in order that the entire community might join in singing together around the community tree. Mr. Stewart led those present in the rehearsal of a group of the carols. The organizations represented at the meeting included the following: Mrs. C. R. Carmack, Frances Colburn and Mrs. R. W. Colburn of the New Thought church; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Brandstater of the Seventh Day Adventist church; Miss Eva Daniels, Mrs Harry MacMullin and Mrs. W. Q. Widdows, members of the Christmas carol committee of Community Service; Miss Alma M. Geiger, musician; Mrs. C. J. Tuttle, Central Avenue Methodist church; Mrs. E. B. Moore, president Glendale Federation of P.-T. A.; H. E. Cavanah, Congregational church choir; O. W. Andreson, Kiwanis club; Dr. Jessie Russell, L. T. Rowley of Glendale Community Service committee; Miss Gertrude Champlain, accompanist; Mrs. Dora L. Gibson, supervisor of music of Glendale Union high school; Don Orput, representative of National Community Service, and Miss Corinne Orff, Glendale Press.

C. OF C. HEARS END OF RAIL DRIVE

P. J. Hayselden Reports on Close of the Campaign

By Albert Marple

"The railroad is over."

This short, snappy, to-the-point and extremely gratifying report was made at the forum luncheon of the Glendale chamber of commerce Tuesday noon, by P. J. Hayselden, chairman of the combined railroad committee.

These four snappy words spoke louder than a whole address could have done. They told that a drive, which was filled with hard work, discouragement and determination had been brought to a successful end. Earnest, dogged effort has been rewarded.

A letter from Mr. Hayselden, thanking the chamber of commerce for the assitance it gave in putting the drive over, was read by Secretary Rhoades.

The chamber went on record as favoring the community Christmas tree plan, and it decided to appoint a committee of three to work on this proposition.

W. H. Farley of the National Cash Register company, gave a very stirring talk on the importance of a chamber of commerce to the citizens of any community. In this talk the speaker made a plea for civic pride. He warned his hearers against resorting to selfishness, for this, he said, would be sure to disrupt the organization.

President Hollister announced that on next Thursday night an excellent program will be given at the regular evening dinner forum of the chamber. At that time John S. McGroarty will be the principal speaker, and in addition there will be a number of excellent musical numbers.

EPISCOPALIANS MEET NEW RECTOR

More than 150 people greeted Rev. and Mrs. Phillip Kemp Tuesday night at a public reception given in the Guild hall of St. Mark's Episcopal church. Rev. Kemp is the new rector of the church and a hearty welcome was extended both him and his wife.

The hall was artistically decorated in yellow and white chrysanhemums combined with ferns and ivy. The piano was banked with golden marigolds. Mrs. F. S. Card and her committee were in charge of the decorations which proved beautiful and very effective against the yellow and white walls.

Miss Lila Litch of the Emerson School of Self-Expression and Miss Gertrude Champlain rendered beautiful piano numbers during the evening by way of entertainment. A social time followed in which delicious refreshments were served, Dr. Frances Eble being in charge. She was assisted by Miss Ellen Williams who poured coffee and by Miss Louise Ayala, Miss Olive Taylor and Mrs. Barnard.

In the receiving line were Mrs. Mortimer Baker, president of St. Mark's Guild, Rev. and Mrs. Phillip Kemp, C. H. Hamilton, Mrs. Phil S. Bernays, Mrs. Helen I. Campbell and Mrs. John Trotter.

The door committee included Mrs. Benjamin Holbrook, Mrs. J. L. McOmber and R. E. Downing.

NO CATS WANTED AT HIGH SCHOOL IT IS DECLARED

Bodies Used Are Left Over from Last Year's Study

In response to the misunderstanding that has arisen as to whether pet cats were being used for dissection purposes at the Glendale high school, the authorities of that institution emphatically denied this morning that this practice was being carried out.

While disection is being carried on to a limited degree at the high school, the animals used this term were secured last year, according to the high school officials. No cats have been taken for this purpose this year, it is claimed. In any event, only stray, homeless cats taken from the poundmaster. There has been no offer to purchase cats at 10 cents each.

A short time ago Miss Green of the high school faculty made application to the poundmaster of Glendale for any stray cats that might be picked up by his department and that would otherwise be killed. There is absolutely no intention on the part of high school teachers or officials of killing anyone's pets.

MRS. COCKRELL IS SERIOUSLY INJURED

The Mrs. C. C. Cockrell who was severely injured when a Pacific Electric train struck her auto on Mission road Tuesday afternoon is the aunt of Mrs. L. N. Hagood of this city. Mrs. Cockrell was taken to a hospital at Alhambra and at first no hopes of her recovery were entertained, as her skull was fractured. Physicians are more hopeful now and think she may be restored. Mrs. Hagood plans to visit the hospital today, although when she heard from there this morning her aunt was still unconscious.

142 CATS TO BE SEEN IN ANNUAL FAIR

All Blue-Blooded Stock of Southern California to Be Represented

MRS. ROSS TO JUDGE

Dr. Whytock to Guard All Pets and Exclude Unhealthy

One hundred and forty-two blue-blooded pussies have been entered for Glendale's annual cat show Friday and Saturday against 81 last year and 62 the year before. This shows the development in the cat fancier line in our city and that cat lovers are no longer satisfied with the short-haired alley feline. It will be located at Central and Broadway in a store building.

While Los Angeles, Santa Monica, San Bernardino, San Gabriel, Pasadena and Pomona catteries will be represented, the majority of the contestants will be Glendale cats, and aside from the exhibition entries there will be choice kittens to be purchased for Christmas gifts.

Mrs. Ross of this city, former head of the Red Wing pigeon lofts, who gave such satisfaction last year as a judge, will again determine the merits of the entries. She was a cat fancier of wide reputation before she became interested in pigeons but is no longer in the business of raising Toms and Tabbies and is therefore as perfectly disinterested as she is competent.

Dr. J. S. Whytock is the veterinarian of the show, and no cat will be admitted until it has been examined by him and pronounced free from any infectious disease.

The show has an excellent location in a new store building on Central avenue at the head of Broadway, viz: 105 South Central, and is expected to attract many visitors. Dr. Libbie Ashcroft will have general management of the exhibit and entries have been made by all Glendalians who have fancy cats, either long or short-haired. Entries closed Monday.

THE SIN WE ARE AFRAID TO MENTION

This Was Sermon Subject at Central Christian Church Last Night

BOLD STATEMENTS

It Was Men's and Boys' Night and Attendance of These Was Large

By O. L. KILBORN

If there were any present in the large audience at the Glendale Central Christian church last night who did not agree with Rev. Cole's bold statements made in the opening words of his sermon on "The Sin We Are Afraid to Mention," they agraed with him before he had ended. The sin is covetousness, the speker said, and it is so common and so popular that we are really afraid to speak of it for fear we will be laughed at or gravely censured. Yet Paul classes this sin with fornication, drunkenness, lewdness and bearing false witness; and he says these sins will shut us out of heaven. It is a sin which both rich and poor commit, this sin of covetousness, which Paul says is idolatry. The scripture reading was the story of the rich young ruler who wanted to know what he lacked that kept him out of the chance of inheriting the Kingdom, for he said he had kept all the commandments from his youth up. Jesus told him that he must sell all he had and give to the poor, then come and follow Him. And the young man refused to take the final step, for he coveted the great wealth that was his and made an idol of it. It is not money that keeps men out of the kingdom today, but the wrong use of it, the making of it the chief thing in life.

The men were out in full force last night, and nearly filled the center section of the auditorium. They did some great singing, too, led by Mr. Conner, coming out especially strong on "The Ninety and Nine." Mrs. Nern's perfect rendering of the pathetic little story, "Goodbye Papa," brought tears to the eyes of many. The singing of the Conners was greatly enjoyed as usual. Those who fail to attend these meetings cannot realize how much they are missing. Such song feasts as are enjoyed here could not be equalled at many a concert to which a large admission fee is charged. And Rev. Cole's sermons are so clear and forcible, so daringly to the point they cannot help but be convincing.

Tonight's sermon subject is "In Christ." All are invited to an evening of enjoyment and profit. "If you miss it, you miss it."

"24" BOYS' SWEATERS

Boys of the class of '24 have placed their order for sweaters with the Stocking Box Shop in the Court that opens onto East Broadway, and have agreed upon an all-black sweater of brushed wool decorated with a large diamond in red, bearing the figures "24," and the letters, G. U. H. S."

BOY SCOUTS MOVE HEADQUARTERS TO 103 1-2 S. BRAND

Growth of Organization Demands Additional Space

Having need of larger quarters in which to take care of the new business created by the tremendous growth of the organization during the year the Verdugo Hills district council of the Boy Scouts of America have moved from 108 N. Brand boulevard, where they have been located since last January, to 103½ South Brand, room 1, of the Flower building. A new telephone which will be listed under the name of Boy Scouts of America has been ordered from the Southern California Telephone company, and until it is installed those wishing to reach Scout Executive Harold Benner may call Glen. 1640 through the courtesy of Charles B. Guthrie, whose suite of offices are next to the scout headquarters.

The scout office staff have been working diligently to get the new headquarters "shipshape" for public inspection and are now ready to welcome their many friends to their new abode. The walls are covered with pictures, posters and pennants pertaining to boy scout activities and a border of the 12 scout laws have been placed on one side of the room. A big bulletin board 4x4 feet will be erected soon for special notices and other items of interest to the Scouts and their leaders.

LITERARY SECTION OF TUESDAY CLUB ENJOY PROGRAM

Members of the Literary section of the Tuesday Afternoon club, who met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. D. Cleophas enjoyed a very nice program which included a paper by Mrs. J. W. Walton on Russia, its peasantry, the conditions under which they are now living and the relief supplies which have been sent from this country. Mrs. G. A. Gallagher gave an excellent review of outstanding features in current magazines presented in a charming manner, and Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward told effectively the beautiful story of the "Master of the Inn." by Robert Herrick. There was also a delightful musical program arranged by Miss Gertrude Cleophas, daughter of the hostess and a professional pianiste. Accompanied upon another piano by Mrs. De Lorenzo of Los Angeles, Miss Cleophas played a concerto in B. Flat Minor by Tschaikowsky, arranged for two pianos or for piano and orchestra. She also gave several other numbers which were much enjoyed.

The program was followed by the serving of tea and cake by the hostess.

The section will hold its next meeting with Mrs. Albert E. Angier, 631 North Orange. At that time there will be travel stories by Mrs. Frankie Webb who will give her experiences in Norway and Sweden, and Mrs. H. R. Boyer who was abroad for several months the early part of the year. In recognition of the approaching holidays, Mrs. H. C. Wilcox will tell the Christmas story in "Ben Hur."

Members of the section are asked to each bring a glass of jelly for the Monte Vista Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Smith have returned from an automobile trip to San Diego, where they spent their honeymoon, and are now residing at 101 E. Doran street. Mrs. Smith was formerly Miss Marcella Orth of 153 South Central avenue.

Truths in Epigram

QUALITY AND QUANTITY

Los Angeles figures that in thirty years it will have more than two million inhabitants. By 1930 it expects to have above a million, and ten years later, to exceed a million and a half. When every circumstance is considered, there appears no reason for believing the estimates to be too great. There seems no doubt that Los Angeles is destined to be one of the largest of American cities. Its rate of growth is so rapid that within the near future it will pass in population all but three or four of the places that now surpass it in this respect.

Such a condition as that augured by the present aspect could not affect Los Angeles alone. It would mean necessarily that the whole community, now embracing a number of municipalities, is to grow into one compact unit. At the same time, to sustain such a population, there would have to be a vast increase in productivity, in manufacture and in means of transportation. In other words, all of Southern California, with territory tributary to it, would have to increase in corresponding ratio.

As growth is being accomplished, it is well to remember that there are other elements than mere size to be kept in mind. The growth demands proper guidance along the best lines. The spirit of a community, as expressed in its regard for intellectual expansion, for beauty, for morals, for health, is more important than either speed or magnitude. It is while all the region is young that the form of its maturity should be visioned, and efforts made to give it the stamp of artistry as well as of utility. Streets are not constructed for a day, nor parks planned for a brief season. The furore for the coming of a multitude of dwellers arises from a natural impulse. As they come it is right that they should have every advantage of culture, amusement, the atmosphere of home, as well as the opportunity to enter business if they choose. When Los Angeles has its two millions, it should be able to boast not so much of this fact, as of the native resources, and the energy that have made the fact possible.

PROFITING BY MISTAKES

In case of another war, the military department contemplates inauguration of a policy far different from that marking entry into the world conflict. Instead of conscripting certain men, the conscription will include all, and take in every business that could have any bearing upon the outcome of hostilities. Therefore there could be none to sidestep blithely into highly paid jobs, while others were forced to go to the front. The man left at home would have no financial advantage over the one in active service. There would be no fat fortunes piled up by contractors. Men who devoted all their abilities to making money, finding that while war lasted they could make no money, would bend their efforts to the bringing of peace. Then after the war there could be no heart-burnings. There would be no ex-service men hunting jobs while others lived at ease on profits wrung from national necessities.

There is no prospect of war. There is no nation that desires to attack the United States. There is none able to do so even if possessing the desire. On the other hand, this country has not even the most remote notion of making war on any other, no scheme of conquest, no grudge to satisfy. At the same time, in the present temper of the powers of the earth, many of them still under arms, there is no impulse to strip this country of means of adequate defense. With hands empty and breast bared, it could not maintain any adequate role in the affairs of nations. It must be able to exercise an influence, which it hopes always shall be benign, but to speak with authority, it must have strength, which is the human quality on which authority is based.

"AMERICAN FASCISTI"

"Has it occurred to you that our American Fascisti are the gentlemen of the ku klux klan?" asks the highest paid editorial writer in the world. Perhaps questions almost as silly have been propounded before. If so there is no record of them.

In the first place there is no American Fascisti; nothing that in any manner approximates or even suggests such an organization. There is no recognizable social force that appears likely to assume the form of the order that has taken over the control of Italy, where its mystery seems both complete and admirable.

So far as the activities of the ku klux have come to light (an experience the perpetrators invariably regard as unfortunate), there is no reason to term them "gentlemen." Their conduct has been singularly unmarked of gentility. They have proved themselves cowardly and brutal. They have attacked unarmed citizens for offenses often not committed by the accused. When the offenses had been committed, they have been of a character amenable to ordinary court processes. The Fascisti were aroused to action by the laxness of the government in dealing with communists and anarchists. The ku klux, defying properly constituted authority, place themselves at the level of the very classes the Fascisti have effaced. Were there to be an American Fascisti, it would eradicate ku kluxism as a poisonous growth.

So far as the ku klux persons have undertaken control, they have proved themselves vicious, insolent and dangerous lawbreakers. So far as their ritual has become known, it is a mass of unconstitutional rubbish, proclaiming the purpose of upholding the law, by means wholly illegal. Its purpose is not in accord with any of the purposes of good government. Its methods could not be tolerated by any self-respecting people. It is mob rule crudely reduced to system; it is lynch law, no better than the lynch law of the howling and uninformed rabble.

La Follette announces the purpose of defeating the administration program. He was against the administration program in the war, and that administration was democratic. Sometimes there are indications that La Follette assumes an air of hostility as a pose. Otherwise he would occasionally be in favor of something.

Once in awhile Bergdoll seems to disappear from the news. For the nonce the public is permitted to forget him. After one of these desirable periods the news that some girl over in Germany had jilted him brought him out of obscurity again. If Bergdoll had stayed at home instead of running away, he would not now have been among the number seeking release as harmless political prisoners.

William Bross Lloyd, a millionaire communist of Chicago either is in jail, or has fled the jurisdiction of the court. His case is difficult to understand. Why a millionaire of communistic beliefs, could not so express himself as to make his principles known, without risk of going to prison, is far from clear in this country. People are not forbidden to hold certain beliefs. They are not hampered in the telling of what they think. The authorities do not bother them unless there has been overt act. When the communists make the effort to smash society, to place him under restraint becomes a mere matter of self-protection.

THE HAPPY WOMAN

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I will tell you, madam, who the rival is that you need fear.

It is not the beautiful woman, or the intellectual woman, or the witty woman, or the well-dressed woman, or the vamp. None of these will probably carry Georgie away from you. That is, none of them will be as likely to do so as another kind of woman.

Dr. Frank Crane

The woman you need fear is the Happy Woman.

The one thing that men most seek in women is cheer.

Perhaps the reason is that most men are bankrupt in cheer and they need constantly new capital.

You have wondered, perhaps, why Georgie is slipping away, and what it is he finds in that minx. If you would examine the case a bit, and open your eyes, you might discover. Did you ever notice that as soon as you get alone with your husband you slump? The lines in your mouth go down, you begin to talk about your complaints and to air your worries.

It is only when some one else comes into the horizon, a neighbor, a friend, or the children, that you perk up.

Now the object of a man is to make a woman happy. That is his pride. If he thinks he is successful in this, it stimulates him, it permeates him with satisfaction.

Did you ever think that you are constantly reminding him that he is not able to make you happy, and in so doing you are unconsciously exerting yourself to depress him?

Consequently he seeks the society of women who cheer up when he approaches. This may be that brainless Mrs. Doolittle, or that simpering miss whom he meets at the country club, or it may be his stenographer, or possibly even one of Mrs. Warren's profession.

In any event, it is the woman who smiles when he comes near, whose face lights up with pleasure at his proximity.

He gets that dangerous idea that he is making her happy.

There is your rival.

And the way to beat her is to be happy yourself. Particularly it is to have your face light up and your spirits become gay, and your atmosphere indicate contentment when George is with you. More especially when he is alone with you.

If you don't propose to change, and you can't be happy with him possibly, then the only thing to do is to see that he only associates with other women who are grouch faces. Then, maybe, you will be the least bad in the lot.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

FROM AN EDITOR

Walter S. Hervey is the editor of "West Side Men," a weekly publication of the West Side Young Men's Christian association of the city of New York. The "Editor's Log" of the edition that appeared on Friday, October 20, in addition to facetiously criticizing excerpts from the writings of Heywood Broun and Don Marquis, is responsible for the following:

"The World (the allusion was to the 'New York World') has not been made safe for words. Neither has The Globe. W. Curtis Nicholson, in the glass house in which he tells people "The Right Word' (correct: 'the right word'), had the misfortune the other day to make one or two slips himself. He wrote:

" 'Many persons with little education, persons that write little and read little, probably get along in life by using only 300 to 400 words',—a sentence which contains one word that is wrong and another that is no righter (if the editor did not want to be credited with such an atrocious formation as 'righter' he should have put it in quotation marks) than it should be. Man shall not live by words alone."

The author of "The Right Word" must be pardoned for the foregoing criticisms in parenthesis.

By means "through the help of" according to the New Standard Dictionary. Furthermore, only is placed before 800, and not before by or before get along, which has a direct bearing on the point under discussion. Will the editor reply to this, and will he point out the other word to which he alluded?

While he is about it, it might be well for him to defend the following locutions found in the sheet in which appeared the "Editor's Log" already referred to:. "He is a poor investor and doubtless some day turn up a broken man . . ."; "While speed may be one's natural event, stamina may be what he needs"; "it should be the aim of our members. . . "every one" and "everyone" (both methods of spelling used); "anyone" (any one dominates in usage, and no dictionary sanctions anyone); ". . as a practicing saxophone shot . . ." (preferred spelling: practising); etc. (with apologies for the etc.)

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

The other day we had something about the uselessness of a general maxim.

And the more we think of it the more true we find it to be that no general maxim fits all cases and circumstances.

For example, there is the well known old maxim that you should "never put off till tomorrow what you can do today."

That sounds impressive.

* * *

But when we come to analyze it and try to fit it in with all the affairs of the world we see it will not do at all.

For it was written to fit the things you should do.

Not the things you should not do.

Thus, you might be disposed to be angry with somebody.

To tell him just what you think in no uncertain language.

* * *

And the maxim says you should not put off till tomorrow what you can do today.

So, according to the maxim, you should do it today.

But, as a matter of good sense and kindliness and all that, you should not do it today.

You should put it off till tomorrow.

And then put it off another day.

Until finally you will not do it at all.

* * *

And perhaps there is the disposition to get in on the ground floor of some oil well stock.

Highly advertised.

Purely speculative.

A gamble.

* * *

But the maxim says you shall not put off till tomorrow the thing you can do today.

So according to the maxim you should send in your check right away.

Today, while the fever is on you.

When as a matter of good sense you should not send in any check at all.

* * *

You should put off sending it till tomorrow.

Till you have a chance to think things over.

And when you come to realize what a thin chance you have in an oil speculation, you will probably not send it at all.

And that will save you some money.

And you save it by putting off till tomorrow what you might have done today.

* * *

And that bitter letter you were going to write to someboy.

A letter you have long had in mind.

A grievance you have cherished for so long it burns within you.

And something affords you the opportunity to let it out.

* * *

According to the maxim you should not put it off till tomorrow.

You should do it today.

But good sense and reason says you should not do it while the anger is on you.

You should think it over.

And cool off a little.

* * *

Then perhaps you will not write the kind of letter you thought you would.

Or you may not write one at all.

Because you have had a chance to think it over.

And you realize how foolish an angry letter is.

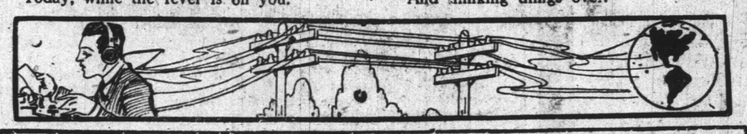
An how you would regret it afterward.

* * *

General maxims are dangerous.

Often pain, humiliation, grief and loss are spared by putting off till tomorrow what you wanted to do today.

And thinking things over.



Songs of the Poets

Two Triolets—By Harrison Robertson (1856——)

What he said:

This kiss upon your fan I press—
Ah! Sainte Nitouche, you don't refuse it!
And may it from its soft recess—
This kiss upon your fan I press—
Be blown to you, a shy caress,
By this white down, when'er you use it.
This kiss upon your fan I press—
Ah, Sainte Nitouche, you don't refuse it!

What she thought:

To kiss a fan!
What a poky poet!
The stupid man
To kiss a fan
When he knows—that—he—can—
Or ought to know it—
To kiss a fan!
What a poky poet!

Discover How to Transmit Encephalitis From Man to Rabbit

Dr. Simon Flexner, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, has announced that he has discovered that the clear contents of cold sores on lips and nose of sufferers from encephalitis or inflammation of the brain will not only produce similar eruptions when inoculated in rabbits, but that a proportion of such inoculated rabbits develop the nervous effects and symptoms of the disease.

"This detection of potency for rabbits of the contents of the herpes eruptions," said Dr. Flexner in reporting his work to the National Academy of Science, "has opened up a new and wide field of exploration into the nature of such serious diseases in man as lethargic or epidemic encephalitis, erroneously called sleeping sickness. It will throw light on still other forms of inflammation of the brain that lead sometimes to lasting defects, the source and character of which are now very obscure."

"The inflammation of encephtlitis may be induced by direct introduction of the contents of the herpes vesicles into the brain of rabbits," he explained. "However induced, the transmission can be carried on in indefinite series. Moreover, the symptoms attending the experimental disease are characteristic in general, while varying individually according to the particular area or part of the brain specially attacked by the active agent. The herpes virus, as the active agent is called, is doubtless of microbic nature.

"Ordinary bacteria are entirely absent from this active material when carefully collected from the herpes vesicles, which when occurring on lips and nose are often spoken of as cold sores, and properly transferred to the brain of rabbits. Other animals are also subject to inoculation in less degree, among them guinea pigs and rats."

Encephalitis lethargica, an infectious disease of the central nervous system, commonly called "sleeping sickness" although it has no relation to the African disease of the same common name, first appeared in epidemic form in recent years in Austria in the winter of 1916. It was described and named in 1917. It reappeared the following winter and was first recorded in England in April, 1918, and in the United States in March, 1919. Its common name comes from the fact that the victim shows lethargy and drowsiness, and the disease is also recognized by the occurrence of double vision, due to paralysis of the muscle of the eye. The mortality of the disease is about 20 per cent and deaths usually occur within three weeks from the onset. Often the illness may continue for weeks and even months. The disease has been hard to treat due to lack of knowledge about its cause and transmission.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

[New York Times]

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment is unfortunately named and has undertaken an impossible task. The amendment will either be enforced adequately, on the whole, or, through the unwisdom and excesses of legislation to enforce it, practically fail, and be evaded or nullified. Its repeal is too unlikely or remote seriously to be considered. The association should have confined itself to the modification of the Volstead act. As things are, the best friends of those who believe in rational and moderate legislation to enforce the Eighteenth amendment are the zeal of the prohibitionists to extend it beyond its language and proper scope, the arbitrary definition of intoxicating liquor, and the vexations and corruptions inevitable in administering the act.

Mr. Daugherty, gaily trying to plunge us into a sea of troubles with foreign nations is doing much more than the association to bring about a modification of the Volstead act, albeit his inspiration is political and commercial rather than moral. There are many excellent and distinguished citizens in the association, but it is too ambitious. Whatever else be thought of the Anti-Saloon league, it has never lacked courage, and in the art of coaxing or bulldozing congress and legislatures it has no peer. Yet its real strength is the burning conviction, the fanaticism, if you like, of the multitude of men and women behind it. The drys, outside of the political brand, are earnest believers. Prohibition is almost a religion with them. They fight without truce or compromise. The wets are mostly lukewarm. That disposition will have to change before there can be reasonable hope of their doing much save to profit by the mistakes of their opponents.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Concerning the problem of immigration many minds have been engaged. It is a vast and complex problem. No wise and just method of solving it completely seems to have been devised.

HENRY JAMES

At one period there will be an apparent surplusage of labor. Then the demand will be voiced for throwing open the gates. At another period men will be vainly seeking work. In such circumstances there is a tendency to deplore the freedom with which aliens have been admitted.

The plea is made that foreign labor is needed for developing land and increasing products. Against this view may be cited that a large part of the human tide that seeks entrance shows no desire to toil in the country. On the contrary, it settles in the already crowded quarters of great cities. Thus in every large city are sections as distinctly European in thought and habit as the individuals thronging them ever knew in their native lands.

These alien communities are likely to contribute to the crime total, to accentuate the constant demand upon charity, and to render difficult the municipal duty of sanitation. In them there may be no sign of recognition of American ideals or spirit.

An influx of foreigners, including large families, is regarded by some as part of the plan to have on hand a supply of child labor.

Statistics show that the better class of immigrants, those from the north of Europe particularly, who are known to make excellent citizens, do not feel the urge to come, while the hordes of the south, far less desirable, are anxious to get in.

There must be some proper method of selection, that shall tend to elevate the quality of immigration without restricting the volume unduly. Only nobody has found it yet.

The situation in Turkey as it affects American interests is delicate and complex. For many years missionaries from this country have been active there. They have sought to educate the native up to standards not acceptable to the faith of Islam. They have risked their lives on many occasions on behalf of their pupils. They have experienced torture, privation, and even death.

If the Turks undertake to expel these alien teachers, if they misconstrue the purpose of the brave men and women, devoting their lives to tasks to which conscience has drawn them, it is extremely difficult to say what ought to be done, or what could be done. It is the gospel of peace these teachers seek to impart. To preach it from within a cordon of bayonets could not be viewed as consistent.

It is said that the Kemalists will demand the return of the sultan. That such request would be denied by any power in whose territory the fugitive had found refuge is a safe conjecture. There is no love felt for him, but the idea of throwing him to the mercies of that mob utterly fails to appeal.

An amazing number of ex-ministers have figured in the criminal news recently. There must be some explanation of this aside from the fact that considerable stir is made every time a member of the clerical profession falls from his high estate.

There also has been much discussion of the poor pay of ministers, such average pay being, indeed, brutally inadequate. Yet very often, by the time a minister has fully realized that his income will not permit him to support a family, he is out of touch with other lines of endeavor. If he leaves the pulpit in search of work and wages, he finds himself in a cold world.

This does not seem to be a good explanation of the unprecedentedly bad moral showing, but it is the only one that comes to mind.

In the recent trial of Clara Phillips the defense adopted the familiar plan of turning the guns upon a witness. This is the course often pursued to divert attention from the real issue. The witness in question may have been a thoughtless and not particularly admirable person, but the attempt to thrust her into the role of defendant was not successful. Eight jurors are on record as having been wishful to send Mrs. Phillips to the gallows. These stand far better in the public esteem than the four who waived consideration of the evidence and accepted the tremulo in the pleading voice of a criminal lawyer.

The lawyer says there will be a new trial. His client has said that she wants to die. Perhaps it is his intent to arrange for the fulfillment of her desire.

The hunger strike fails utterly as a method of appeal for sympathy. It assumes a consideration for the prisoner that even a kindly public is under no obligation to feel. If the prisoner is wrongfully accused, there are methods of making the fact clear. Voluntary abstention from food is a rocky road to martyrdom, but if one elects to travel it, the resolution is an individual concern.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

My pet aversion for two years has been young Bill Elliott, son of the pipe foundry. Not that he is not a decent enough boy, naturally, but his head had swelled beyond hope. He used to look at his old man with a tolerant grin—at Old Bill Elliott, mind you, who began with a pair of hairy hands and made himself a power—and when Old Bill made a glaring error in grammar Young Bill used to correct him. Not that he ever said:

"Say it this way, Dad."

Old Bill would have mashed him into the Persian rug if he had. But Young Bill used to repeat the same phrase, corrected, and Old Bill was helpless. Now I no longer loathe, despise, and condemn Young Bill. He has become a white man.

"How come?" I asked him, frankly, taking advantage of the fact that I'm too little for him to hit, and too old, anyhow.

"I went broke," said Young Bill.

The old man arranged it. He hiked Young Bill off to Europe, and then one day Young Bill, instead of the anticipated check, got a note from an American office in the particular European city he was patronizing at the moment. There he found a letter from his dad.

"It isn't possible you are such a muff as you seem to be," said Old Bill. "But if you are not you will come home on your own, without borrowing or going into debt. Go to work, you poor sap!"

Young Bill did. He had to. The good word had been passed on in the city. He still believes that the cable messages never got out of town, for such things have happened in Europe before. At the end of the third week he had sold all his portables and the hotel had seized his trunks. His father's friend got him a job on a coasting steamer that made a sort of ricochet in the direction of America, but one night the mate kicked him ashore in a strange Greek town.

"I begged," said he, frankly, "and I got black eyes and mussed up and my clothes went to rags."

He got home in the stokehold, having seen more of the world in nine months than Old Bill has seen in all his life. That first frantic desire to crown the old man had left him, too. As the fat of the first born sweated from him he began to get a new point of view. Now he works for a living, and Old Bill roars at him:

"Why the heck——?" asks Old Bill. But he glows like a furnace with sheer pride in his son.

Pacific-Southwest Review

By D. H. SMITH

Manager Brand Boulevard Branch Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Bank

D.H.Smith

Cooperation is the watchword of California. The economic history of this State, particularly in the southern half, has been very closely interwoven with the development of the cooperative principle in business, our most important agricultural products, such as citrus fruits, raisins, walnuts, etc., having assumed their importance largely because of the development of cooperative marketing by producers, when other marketing methods had failed.

The same priciple which has been applied by the producers of agricultural products is now being applied in the financial world through the banking organization of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank, which is in reality a huge cooperative banking association for the purpose of developing the Pacific-Southwest with the greatest efficiency possible, and adopting the principle under which the cooperative marketing organizations have developed the agricultural life of this district.

The banks which have joined the Pacific-Southwest system have all been leaders in the communities in which they have operated. They have all retained their local identity and the full banking powers which they had as independent banks, but through cooperation have joined their resources together in such a manner as to place the strength of a two hundred million dollar banking organization behind each community in which the Pacific-Southwest banking organization operates.

Although thsi new system has been in operation but a few months, it has clearly demonstrated the increasing bank services which can be provided for the community through the adoption of cooperative banking methods.

In the San Joaquin Valley it has undertaken important financing of agricultural producers as well as of commercial interests, beyond the loan capacity of the individual banks prior to consolidation. Similar action has been taken in other important Pacific-Southwest communities, such as Long Beach, Pasadena, etc.

Definite examples of improved banking service could be given indefinitely, but these examples are probably sufficient to show that through such a cooperative organization each bank in the system secures the loan limit of the entire system and the means for financing its community far beyond its ability as a smaller independent organization.

In other words, through the adoption of the principle of cooperation, which has proved so successful in the agricultural life of California and which the late Franklin K. Lane once characterized as the motivating force in the economic life of the 20th Century. The Pacific-Southwest banking system has materially increased the banking services available to the Pacific-Southwest, and has started important new development which would not have been possible had it not been for the adoption of the principle cooperative banking exemplified in the Pacific-Southwest Branch Bank system.

CAHUENGA PARK ABSORBS LOCAL INVESTMENTS

Deep appreciation of the interest local people have taken in "Cahuenga Park" is expressed by Tom Bundy and Charley Albright, subdividers of this Ventura boulevard townsite and acreage development.

They state that more than half of the lots purchased were bought by people from Van Nuys, Lankershim, Glendale and vicinity. Over $100,000 worth of lots have been sold to date, yet this tract opened only last Saturday afternoon, November 18.

The subdividers claim that valley people realize that the ground floor prices insure a large enhancement in values at Cahuenga Park. The location of the tract on Ventura boulevard at Sherman Way, makes it the ideal spot for a new, thriving commuunity. The fertile soil, cheap Los Angeles city water, and high, sightly ground, overlooking the entire valley, make Cahuenga Park most desirable for homesites. Splendid school facilities and bus service add to its convenience.

Installation of improvements, including water, gas, electricity, sidewalks, curbs and streetwork is to be started immediately. The improvements will be included in the prices of the lots, according to the subdividers.

Probably no other development in the immediate vicinity of Los Angeles has been so comprehensively planned.

All valley folks know that this location is unsurpassed for berry, fruit, vegetable or chicken farming on account of the uniformity of climate and the perfect drainage and fertile soil.

The men behind Cahuenga Park are all successful, reputable fellows, able to back up what they say by actual deeds, and if the future of Cahuenga Park is judged by what these men have accomplished in the past, it will be a tremendous success.

Experience has proven this many years ago.

RICHARDSON LINE PERMITTED TO ADJUST FARE

A tentative order of the railroad commission was issued today permitting A. J. Richardson to adjust passenger fares between Los Angeles, Sunland and intermediate points resulting in increases and decreases, but reducing on the whole additional return. The order permits the proposed rates to become effective for experimental period of 90 days. The applicant is required to submit monthly reports of passengers and earnings. At the end of the 90 day period the commission will make a final order based upon the facts as developed in the reports.

STRING INSTRUMENT STUDIO IS OPENED.

Ruth Edith Lane announces the opening of her studio at Room 14, Monarch building, where she is receiving pupils for instruction on all stringed instruments and character dancing. Particular attention is being given to the guitar and ukulele.

Especial attention is given to the furnishing of entertainment features for social events, lodges, etc. Another attractive feature is that 15 free lessons will, until the first of the year, be given with each guitar purchased, and an absolute guarantee is given that pupils will learn during these lessons, to play.

RUSSIAN NOBLES IN POVERTY
PARIS (By Mail).—Hundreds of the former aristocracy of Russia are almost penniless in Paris and are earning bare livings in the most humble callings. Driven from their estates by fear of Bolsheviks, they are now forced to manual labor, in everything from dishwashing to taxicab driving. Count Ignatieff, formerly an officer in the Russian Imperial Guard, is driving a taxi. One of Ignatieff's brothers is foreman of a gang of laborers in the devastated regions. Former Councilior of State Lutchinsky, who speaks eight languages, earns thirty cents per hour at proof-reading. A former officer of the Russian guard is washing dishes in a Riviera hotel.

VISIONED FOLKS BUY IN EAGLE GLEN HEIGHTS

Names of Buyers Among Who Is Who in Southern California

The development of the eastern part of Glendale as a residential section of high character is strongly emphasized, according to H. V. Henry, local manager of Eagle Glen Heights, by the high standing of purchasers of home-sites in that well-known local foothill subdivision. A list of those who have recently acquired lots there reads like a selection from "Who's Who in Southern Salifornia," Mr. Henry points out.

Some of those who will make this J. Harvey McCarthy subdivision their future home are Frank Ayars, publisher; Dr. Geo. Thompson, of Hollywood; Dr. Edw. Alsburger, A. G. Spohr, well-known Glendale merchant; H. B. Howeth, brick manufacturer; Capt. Thomas D. Watson, president, Glendale high school board of trustees; Geo. Lindsay, architect; Charles Perry, contractor; Rev. W. W. Cookman, W. W. Cookman, Jr.; J. R. Prince, attorney, Los Angeles city engineer's office; J. C. McQuiston, purchasing agent, Santa Fe Railway Co.; J. K. Todd, automobile paint manufacturer; Mrs. M. L. Bryant.

Now that practically all improvements have been completed and public utilities installed at Eagle Glen Heights, the erection of homes is proceding at an exceedingly rapid rate, Mr. Henry points out. Nearly all of the street work has been completed with the exception of the top surfacing of the streets, which is to be finished at a very early date. The paving, sidewalks, curbs and gutters are all in and the planting of the beautiful shade trees which are to ornament the tract will be begun very shortly. Gas mains, water mains and electric wiring are all in place, so that Eagle Glen Heights is completely ready for anyone who wishes to build for immediate occupancy.

At the Theatres

AT THE T. D. & L.

To those who remember "The Silent Call" it will probably sound unbelievable to declare that the second First National attraction, starring Strongheart, the wonderful dog actor, "Brawn of the North," at the T. D. and L. theatre, Glendale, shows this star 100 percent improved since his initial picture. But it is a fact. Laurence Trimble and Jane Murfin, who have sponsored this second production, have given him opportunity to display an acting ability that would never be suspected in a dog and he proves equal to it.

Ralph Allan announces some De Luxe vaudeville for Friday and Saturday at the T. D. and L. "The Greenwich Village Girl Revue" with eight beautiful, wonderful girls, in jazz, a dancing, musical novelty. A half hour show all in itself, elaborately and especially staged—nothing of its kind ever having been presented in Glendale before. Remember, Friday and Saturday, both afternoon and night.

AT THE GLENDALE

The longing in the hearts of all for travel and adventure heightens the popular appeal of "Under Two Flags," the great Universal dramatization of Ouida's famous novel, which closes at the Glendale theatre tonight. Theater-goers are transported for an evening to Algeria, the French province in northern Africa, where this immortal romance unfolds. With Priscilla Dean as Cigarette, the beautiful girl of Algiers, they live the life of the French army post, have a glimpse of a sheik's luxurious palace, and ride with a cavalry troop across the desert in a mad race against death.

Tod Browning, director of "Under Two Flags" has caught the foreign atmosphere of the story in every foot of film. The plot is one of love and danger that might be told in any language, but he has built up a romantic photoplay that fairly breathes the spirit of the African desert.

AT THE UNITED

Setting a new pace for the screen in realism and downright thrills in the same manner the original production did upon the legitimate stage, "The Storm" opened its local engagement at the United theater, Eagle Rock, last night to an enthusiastic and appreciative audience. In many respects this Universal-Jewel presentation surpasses the stage version, notably in the storm and fire scenes where miles of exteriors offered a greater opportunity to Director Reginald Barker than were at the disposal of George Broadhurst.

Adapted from the play which packed New York theatres for months, the screen version follows Langdon McCormick's script faithfully. House Peters plays the part of Burr, the primitive frontiersman, in a manner that reaches new heights of screen artistry. Virginia Valli, as the French-Canadian girl, who causes Burr and his English lawyer friend — interpreted by Matt Moore—to break a fast friendship, does the finest work of her career.

AMERICAN FORCE IN GERMANY IS HOMEBOUND

BERLIN (By Mail).—The American forces in Germany are glad to go home.

Until recently the few remaining members of the American Army of Occupation at Coblenz were satisfied to remain. Their reasons were numerous. They are regular army men and as such were satisfied to remain at such posts as the government ordered.

Now that many of their enlistments are nearing expiration, the soldiers are beginning to think of Christmas with the folks. Prices are climbing. Only a few hundred American soldiers remain. Coblenz isn't the American center it was when thousands of khaki-clad men were seen on every street, in every hotel and cafe.

"Them Days are Gone Forever," according to Amaroc, the A. F. G. paper.

"Wherever soldiers gather," the Amaroc declares, "a great deal of the conversation is taken up with speculation as to the date of our departure. The cries against leaving are not as positive as heretofore. An excellent example of the change in sentiment was the attitude of the crowd at the departure of a casual detachment the other day.

"Upon former occasions when troops were departing they were invariably sympathized with by those remaining and appeared to accept sympathy as appropriate. At the last train however, the situations might be said to have been reversed. Many of those on the platform expressed a wish to be on the train and no signs of downheartedness or regret were exhibited by those leaving. They were, as a whole, really glad to be going. The reduction of forces has changed the atmosphere of the entire community."

THE MARK AND INSURANCE

BERLIN (By Mail).—The fall of the mark has played havoc with the insurance business in Germany. The fond husband who insured his life for 50,000 marks before the war—a sum more than ample to keep his wife and children in comfort for many years— today is the victim of an economic development which would make his dependents virtually paupers should they depend upon his insurance for a livelihood after his death.

One million members are now enrolled in the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union and everywhere women's interest in that organization is becoming daily more widespread, according to the report of Miss Anna A. Gordon, national president of the W. C. T. U., given at the Chambers-Wylie Memorial church, Philadelphia, at the convention.

"During the past year 2,000 new local unions have been formed in the United States, and the work of the W. C. T. U. because of its many and varied activities is ever-widening and making itself felt with increasing force," said Mrs. Frances P. Parks, corresponding secretary of the National W. C. T. U. in commenting on the membership growth particularly noted since the beginning of the Jubilee Membership campaign which ends in 1924.

Many of the international delegates to the World W. C. T. U. convention held in the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, have remained for the National convention. Miss Evangeline Booth will make the feature address at the closing session of the convention on November 19. Commissioner Roy Haynes and Miss Jane Addams will be leading speakers during the conference sessions.

The officers of the National W. C. T. U. are: Miss Anna A. Gordon, president; Mrs. Frances P. Parks, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Margaret Munns, treasurer; Mrs. Ella Boole, vice president; Mrs. Sara Hoge, and Mrs. Elizabeth Preston Anderson, secretaries.

IMPORTANT AIR INVENTION

Maneyrol, the aviator who just broke the world's record for motorless flying, has completed tests of a novel feature on an airplane that permits the plane to throttle down to almost a walking pace and still maintain headway in the air. Heretofore it was necessary for planes to maintain a speed of from 25 to 40 miles an hour to stay in the air.

The invention consists of an attachment whereby the width of the wings is increased or decreased during the flight, by pulling a lever. During the first trials Maneyrol flew at 125 miles per hour, then slowed downto 35 miles per hour and finally landed without the slightest bump at only 12 miles per hour.

SHORT MADE LONG

LEIPZIG (By Mail).—An operation making a short person long has actually been performed, according to a report read before a scientific convention here. A dwarf who desired to attain a somewhat more mature statue, submitted to an operation on his legs. A piece of the upper leg was cut out, a bony substance, not actually bone, inserted which joined up anew with the real bones. This was firm enough to support the weight of the man when it healed.

DUNLOP REVIVAL IN TROPICO WELL ATTENDED

Because they are of the helpful kind that make life brighter and more worth while, everybody enjoys the Dunlop meetings now on each night at the Tropico Presbyterian church.

The evangelist pulled a good laugh last night in telling of a little girl who came to live with her aunt. After having been there a month she wrote the following letter addressed thus: "Dear Devil: I wish you would come and get my auntie, I have stood her just as long as I can." The speaker asked the question, "Where art thou, in the eyes of your children?"

"Environment does not guarantee character, for Adam was ideally surrounded in the Garden of Eden. No true character is assured outside of Jesus Christ. Where art thou? Not in the eyes of your mother, wife, husband or friends, but before God who is all holy. Character, says Mr. Moody, is what you are in the dark."

Tonight at 7:30 to 8:30 prompt enjoy the duet by Dr. and Mrs. H. P. Dunlop, the evangelists from Chicago. Sermon theme, "Glendale Awake!"

VOLSTEAD FAVORED IN NEW TURKEY

CONSTANTINOPLE (By Mail).—If social reform is the peacemaker of general development, prohibition, which is strictly enforced in Asia Minor and is one of the topics of the day in Constantinople may prove the first step toward the reorganization of Turky as announced by the Nationalists.

The government of Angora is trying to carry out literally and even to exceed the demand of the Prophet Mohammed that the followers of the faith should abstain from drinking wine.

The sale and consumption of any form of alcohol is strictly prohibited in Asia Minor and this rule will be decreed in Constantinople and Thrace as soon as they pass under the jurisdiction of the nationalist government.

THE OAK TREE

The great oak spread its mighty arms
Above the turfy lawn,
And underneath were shady charms
Ere the bright sunlight gone.
A noble oak it was and old
With a majestic mien,
And through the leaves the sunlight's gold
Came filtering between

And one day came a tiny thing
So small you could not see,
With little nose and fuzzy wing
And rested on the tree.
And then it bored a little hole
Into the bark and through,
And into the great trunk it stole
Its way, as borers do

And years went by and in the wood
The borers multiplied,
The tree looked strong and fair and good,
And stout and strong outside.
But through the heart of it they went
And bored it through and through,
Until the strength of it was spent
Before we thought or knew.

And one day came a mighty wind
As mighty winds will blow,
And we awoke at dawn to find
The great tree lying low.
Its limbs that were so fair to see
Were riven wide apart,
And then we saw the great oak tree
Was rotten at the heart.

My friend, it was a noble tree
That spread its mighty arms,
That spread its shade for you and me
And raptured us with charms.
A tiny thing ate through the shell,
So little at the start,
But at the last the great tree fell
Quite rotten at the heart.

FANNING WITH FARRELL

GAMBLING EVIL IN NEW YORK RING

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Just before the recent championship bout in which Mickey Walker won the welterweight championship from Jack Britton, the New York Boxing Commission created a mild sensation with the announcement from the ring:

"ALL BETS ON THIS CONTEST ARE OFF!"

Admitting that the commissioners were actuated by admirable jealousy in aiming a blow at the gamblers, yet their action was questionable.

It cast suspicion on a bout that no one will admit looked to be anything but on the level.

It put a black mark on the last chapter of the career of Jack Britton, whose integrity had never been questioned in a record running over twenty years.

It put the commission in a technical position of recognizing gambling.

* * * * * * *

It would take evidence strong enough to swing a biased jury to prove to us that Jack Britton would be a party to anything off color or that he would descend to the level of a rat in double-crossing thousands of friends who had backed him.

To become a party to a framed bout, Britton would have to be a money-grabber and a man bereft of all honor and character.

Jack Britton does not need money and anyone who knows him personally would use his fists to defend an insinuation that he is anything but a perfect gentleman and a man of the highest honor and character.

You can never tell, the skeptics say, but if Jack Britton is anything else, we lose our faith in everyone.

He went down to defeat as gallant and noble a loser as ever had the cards go against him. No one can ever make us believe that he lost for any reason other than he had reached the end of his string.

* * * * * * *

Gambling has become a menace to boxing in New York, just as it is a cancer on every sport. The commission would be lax in its duty if it did not try to stop the vultures who make their living on working gyp games and the double-cross, but the commissioners sometimes merely treat the ailment on the surface and ignore the core.

In a large room off the foyer of Madison Square Garden, formerly used as a dining room, the gamblers collect before every fight. They virtually make books and shout their odds. Although the commissioners could not help but be aware of it, they have never taken steps to close the doors of the "betting shed."

It was from the activities in this gathering place of the gamblers that word came to the commissioners the night of the Britton-Walker fight that caused them to call off all bets.

Late in the afternoon a well known gambling ring was betting three to one around Broadway that Britton would not lose the title.

Several hours later, when the garden opened, the same gamblers were running around feverishly offering eight to five that Walker would win.

One of the biggest gamblers in town, who was mentioned in several big scandals, told a few friends early in the evening that Britton could not win.

William Muldoon, chairman of the commission, who has never been accused of being asleep on the job, called in Abe Attell, who was offering large amounts of money, but Abe knew nothing about it—he insisted.

The commission then decided to actin advance and declare all bets off.

BUSINESS WOMEN ORGANIZE FOR HOLIDAYS

Several committees of the Business and Professional Women's club met at the clubhouse Tuesday night and went into joint session for the transaction of business relating to the club in general and their committees in particular, Dr. Laura Brown presiding. Reports of arrangements for the Old Fashioned Barn Dance next Monday night were submitted and plans made for a Christmas frolic December 19.

The session followed a jolly supper together.

So many new members are coming into the club increasing the problem of getting acquainted, a proposition to order club buttons carrying the name of the member as well as the club, met with a very favorable response. Dr. Brown was authorized to appoint a committee to secure the buttons at a cost not to exceed 35c each and she named Mrs. W. M. Kirkham and Mrs. M. Smith, asking them to select a third associate. It is expected the buttons will be available for the delegation it is hoped will attend the dinner at Pasadena when the Business Women's club of that city entertains the county federation in a fashion similar to the dinner recently given by the Glendale club. All members present ordered buttons.

Mrs. Heisler was asked to officially represent the club at the monthly meeting of the county federation to be held Wednesday evening of the present week at the Van Nuys hotel in Los Angeles.

It was agreed that the Old Fashioned Barn Dance to be held under the auspices of the club at the Chamber of Commerce next Monday evening, will take place of the customary social meeting held the last of the month.

The meeting also voted to hold the regular business session of the full club in December a week earlier than usual, viz., a supper on December 5 at 6:30 following the monthly meeting of the club's cabinet officers, it being understood there would be no program. The change was made in order to leave Tuesday evening, December 12, open for members to attend the dinner in Pasadena.

December 19, which will be committee night, will also be the Christmas party of the club when inexpensive toys will be brought for distribution among club members, afterwards to be sent to the children at Monte Vista. It will likewise be a Christmas package party for the club house when donations in the way of supplies of any useful sort will be welcome. In the main it will be a frolic with a Christmas tree and a Christmas program.

Mrs. Peggie Warner announced the floor managers of the barn dance as Secretary Rhoades and Assistant Secretary Sanders of the Chamber of Commerce, Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson and M. W. Kirkman, with Mayor Spencer Robinson leading the grand march with Mrs. Elsie Williams, chairman of the hostess committee.

YOUNG MAIDS AND MATRONS SECTION ENTERTAINED

Mrs. Julian Hayward of 428 West Lexington Drive, assissted by Mrs. Eugene E. Valk, was hostess Tuesday afternoon to the members of the Young Maids and Matrons section of the Tuesday afternoon club, of which she is curator. The study for the afternoon was on Interior Decorating. Mrs. Valk read articles on home decorating and the placing of furniture, in which was emphasized the importance of choosing a dominant feature in the decoration of a room, to which all other articles of furniture must be supplementary.

Mrs. Hayward announced that $100 had been cleared by the members of the section at the card concession at the Society Circus and Bazaar. Mrs. W. F. McPherson will entertain the members of the section at the meeting on December 5, and on December 19 the section members will have a luncheon at the home of Mrs. C. G. Putnam. It was decide to eliminate the first meeting in January, this being the first day after New Years. On January 16 Mrs. E. B. Sutton of 727 East Windsor road, assisted by Mrs. J. A. Belyea, will be hostess to the members. A review of "This Freedom" will be given.

The remainder of the afternoon was given over to bridge, "500" and a social hour, during which refreshments were served. Those present included Mrs. Owen Emery, Miss Florence Scott, Mrs. George R. Postle, Mrs. F. B. Clark, Mrs. E. L. Osborn, Jr., Mrs. C. C. Carroll, Mrs. E. B. Sutton, Mrs. C. J. Gans, Mrs. Herbert Reid, Mrs. S. E. Ross, Mrs. Mae Rosenberg, Mrs. Bernard H. Scott, Mrs. Jesse Flower, Mrs. C. G. Putnam, Mrs. W. F. MacPherson, Mrs. F. J. Rogers, Mrs. A. M. Draper, Mrs. J. A. Belyea, Mrs. G. G. Blue, Miss Corinne Orff, Mrs. Valk and Mrs. Hayward.

NORTHRUP GROUP OF HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETS

The M. M. Northrup group of the Women's Home Missionary society met Tuesday for their all-day meeting at the First Methodist church. A luncheon was enjoyed at noon.

In the afternoon the Lucy Webb Hayes group met and both groups worked for the different branches of their work in Southern California.

DUTY

The duty of a retail lumber yard does not consist only in selling lumber. To consider carefully the individual requirements of each customer, to recommend only those materials which satisfactionly fill those requirements.

To conscientiously advise our customers on the various building problems that may arise.

In addition to the above the use of our complete filing system is available, by means of which the prospective builder can get in touch with contractors, carpenters, builders, plasterers and cement workers.

These are functions which this firm consider its elementary duties.
